2.5.4 Landfill Fire

In 1993 an underground fire of unknown origin was detected along the northern quarry wall of the area originally permitted under Permit No. 118909, immediately east of the flare station (Figure 2-21). To determine the extent of the fire, SCS Engineers of Cincinnati, Ohio conducted an infrared thermograph study. The results of the study in conjunction with temperature probe information showed that the fire was concentrated immediately surrounding the quarry wall, east of the flare station (SCS, May 17, 1994). No underground lateral migration was detected. The area which separated from the quarry wall has been sealed with cement slurry. Temperature probes continue to be monitored.

Sept. 18 DNR Letter to EPA

Condition #9: (Comment #20) Appendix D, Section 3.3.1 Land Clearing. The intent of the original comment was to prevent dust generation from the ground surface due to grinding equipment. Instead, use non-grinding equipment such as bobcat mounted shears or handheld equipment to clear/prune vegetation as stated in our original comment. There should be no visible dust emissions from the vegetation clearing activities.
